Inman Promoted To Oakland Post By Oil Company

Robert H. Inman, local manager of the Shell Oil Company, was promoted to manager of the Oakland regional office of the firm.

Mr. Inman has been here seven months and has been closely affiliated with civic and club activities of the community.

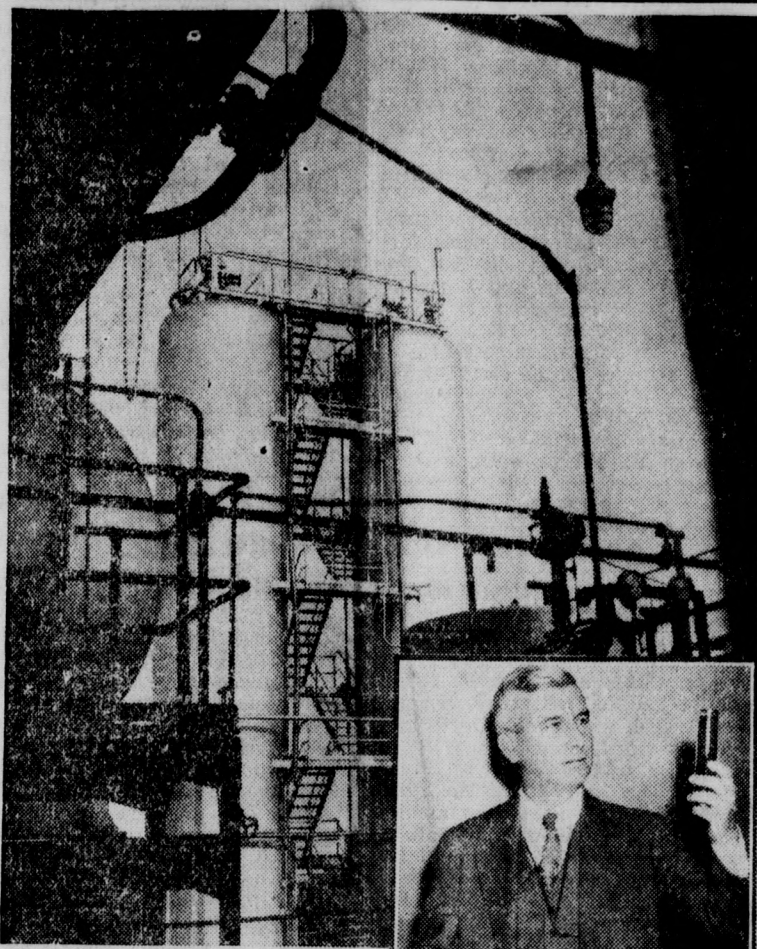

He will be succeeded in Redwood City by L. H. Hausam who comes to Redwood City from San Jose.

'Faculty Splash' Held By Sequoia Teachers

Chilly weather on Monday subdued the "Faculty Splash" of the Sequoia teachers to a mild "Kerplunk" when only five teachers took dips in the swimming pool. The rest turned to ping-pong, horseshoes, quilts and shuffleboard.

After informal sports contests, the teachers took their dinner, prepared by Mrs. F. Langbehn, in the school cafeteria, the evening coolness forcing cancellation of plans to have a picnic supper outside in the swimming pool court.

Science Wins Oil Battle

Newspapers of the United States a few weeks ago carried wire stories about a sensational new method of oil refining perfected by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company. This method is known as the Clearcol process, and improved Mobilol made under the formula, is now available for the first time to Pacific Coast motorists through all General Petroleum Corporation service stations. The mammoth towers in which propane, one of the solvents used, is stored are shown above. Right, Dr. J. B. Rath, famous director of research of Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, is holding in his right hand the type of tarry stuff that the revolutionary Clearcol process "washes" from even high grade motor oils made by older methods. Socony-Vacuum uses a second solvent, as it was found that a single solvent would not completely refine the oil.

Then after the jungles come the prosperous plantations where the famous Kona coffee is grown, the hillsides covered with sturdy plants and bright berries. A storm comes up, a shower of slanting silver rain which brings refreshment with it, peacock spreading an arrogant tail up every waving feather is exposed. A slipper, high-heeled, provocative, slips daintily out of a lace-like fluff of vivid foam; and suddenly above this, we see the copper-haired, the striking sensuous profile of Pele herself—no light-of-love, no trivial painted lady, but a great courtesan, superb, imperial, triumphant.

All around us the darkness is deepening. The sky has become a dome of onyx, black and brilliant and pierced with diamonds; and over it is dancing a crescent moon, her silver skirts shining smooth about her—a distant, sanctified virgin, disdainful of that gorgeous Jezebel in the pit. But we are not disdainful. She has first ensnared and then enslaved us; and how can we hope or desire to escape her, when she has transfigured even the rocks that rise around her and the clouds that float above her? These are glowing now with fiery rose, reflected from her blazing bed; her radiance has overspread the chaste heavens and the cool earth, it has permeated and glorified the still night—a night possessed and dominated by Pele, mistress of flame and frenzy, goddess of Kilauea.

IV

After the awe and rapture of worship at the fiery shrine of Pele, goddess of Kilauea, the calmer joys which Hawaii abundantly offers bring a deep sense of restored serenity and abiding peace.

We fling one last bunch of scarlet chelo berries into the foaming, churning pit; then leaving the crater with its comets and its clamor and all its splendor far behind us, we encircle the Southern point of the island, where our road winds its way over historic lava beds; past promontories where the pointed spires of lonely little churches bear indomitable witness to the spirit of holiness which pervades even the most barren places; through pastures bright with the blossoms of lantana, where purple and orange-colored flowers mingle arrestingly on the same bush. There is lehua, too, along our road—the island flower, with upturned leaves and cupped crimson blossoms; and "Hawaiian Holly", gay and glossy. We pause to pick them all; and as the afternoon is warm, we stop, too, in leisurely fashion to sever cactus fruit off the flat prickly leaves from which it bulges, and to drink its refreshing juice before we go on our way again.

The drive is one of endless variety of scene. After the lava beds, come the jungles; and here, too, there are strange sweet fruits to savor; jade-green ohia (guava); golden loka (rose-apples), fragrant and fragile, delicate to both taste and touch; young coconut in which the water has not yet turned to milk, its quivering pulp translucent like white ade; kukui (candle-nuts) so rich in oil that one may use them as lights.

Kiwanians Help Fete Anniversary Of P. A. Club

For those members unable to attend the joint meeting of the Palo Alto, Redwood City and Mountain View Kiwanis Clubs Tuesday in Palo Alto, a round table meeting was held yesterday noon at the Sequoia Hotel.

Tuesday's meeting in Palo Alto was the 10th anniversary meeting of that club. The Redwood City Club under the leadership of Father Cornelius Kennedy founded the Palo Alto club in 1925. Later the Palo Alto club organized the unit at Mountain View.

Prof. Hugh Jackson, dean of the school of business at Stanford University, was the speaker of the day. He spoke on Kiwanis and Kiwanis membership. E. S. Erwin, of Stanford acted as chairman. Charles G. Lambert of the Redwood City club led the singing.

Guests who were present included Lieutenant Governor of Division 12, Alvin Long of San Jose and Father Cornelius Kennedy, honorary member of the Redwood City Club and member of the Mission Kiwanis Club of San Francisco.

Next Monday evening at the Sequoia Hotel the local club will celebrate "All-Kiwanis Night." This event marks the opening of the international convention in San Antonio, Tex. It will be a dinner meeting for members and wives and a special program has been arranged.

Clarence M. Dosssee left last night to attend the convention as the club's delegate. Following the convention Dosssee will visit relatives and friends in Iowa.

NEW OIL PROCESS TO BE EXPLAINED

One hundred fifty dealers and company employees of the General Petroleum Company of the Redwood City district will attend a meeting to be held at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday evening, May 21.

The meeting is for the purpose of instructing all interested in the technical and sales angle of the Clearcol refining process for Mobilol which was recently discovered.

Ralph Tenhoffer, lubrication engineer, will be the principal speaker.

Other features of the evening will be two comedy talking pictures. Refreshments will be served. The meeting will be in charge of B. A. Muir, district manager for General Petroleum.

Veterans to Attend Memorial Services

Memorial Sunday, May 26, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion and the General George F. Evans Relief Corps will attend a memorial service at 11 a. m. at the Baptist Church here, it was announced today.

The Rev. Charles Gatchell will preach a special sermon for the occasion.

SAFeway STORES PLAN DAIRY AID

Employees of the local Safeway organization will become "big butter and egg men" this week when the grocery company puts on a giant campaign to aid dairymen and poultry raisers.

The event is a feature of Safeway's annual "Grower-Consumer" program, in which the company uses modern advertising and merchandising methods to help move surplus and thus pave the way for greater income for producers.

The dairy industry, particularly, is said to be facing an unsatisfactory condition at this time, the average value of a milk cow having dropped from $83.99 in 1929 to $27.09 in 1934 (latest national figures available).

Large quantities of milk, butter and eggs will be purchased from local dairy and poultry farmers for the campaign, which is scheduled from May 20 to 25, inclusive. The freshness and general high quality of the products will be stressed.

After the banana plant has borne a single crop of fruit, the plant slowly dies. A new plant then develops from a shoot at the base of the stem of the old plant.

'WHALE OF A JOB' So Thinks Major Gans BUT HE FIXES IT

Maj. Charles C. Gans, county health officer, has a "whale" of a job.

To him goes credit for the largest fish story of the season. Friday he had a whale. He hadn't caught it, but he had a whale just the same—10 tons of fish that had cast itself on Tinitas beach. And Dr. Gans didn't know how to get rid of it. He could have burned it, he said, but people would have been able to smell the "bonfire" all over the county.

The funny part about having a whale, according to Dr. Gans, is that the longer you keep it, the more objectionable the thing gets.

Finally, the doctor got in touch with a tallow company in San Francisco. Sure, they were glad to have the whale, and later hauled it away on a truck—after they'd secured a tractor to move the whale-burdened truck.

"I hope that's the last time I have a whale on my hands," Dr. Gans said today.

HAWAIIAN VIGNETTES

By Frances Parkinson Keyes

When you reach Hilo, the "Crescent City," after your island flight between Oahu and Hawaii, you step into a waiting motor, and, rising gently all the time, drive over thirty miles of smooth paved road, fringed with giant ferns, belladonna and ginger blossoms. Then you swing around a curving driveway, and alight at the entrance of the old Volcano House, where a cheerful fire is blazing under a large stone mantel and a genial Greek proprietor, voluble in the midst of the impassive Chinese "boys" about him, comes out to welcome you.

The air is crisp and sparkling, there are little spirals of steam ascending surprisingly out of the ground at intervals all around you. But all in all, as far as you can see from the wide windows of the room to which you are shown, the great panorama spread out before you is still and serene. Its coloring is agate-like—it might be a vast chaledony in stripes and swirls of blue and brown, rust and dust. There even seems to be a texture of smoothness about the illusion of glaze.

circling park, the sense of tranquility persists. You behold the fern jungle, the "crater chain", pleased but unmoved. It is only when at last you alight at the spot marked Halamaumau, (House of Everlasting Fire) walk somewhat stumblingly across a barren expanse of ground where scraps of lava stone are scrunched under your feet, and look down, down, down to the bottom of a huge funnel walled with serrated rock, that something leaps inside you and seems to cry aloud.

On one side of the huge pit beneath you there is only a vast surface of dark loamlike lava, quiescent though turgid. But on the other side, a network of fine fiery lines dotted with small blazing points, creeps insidiously over the swollen mire; and from this scarlet network spring six scarlet fountains of vehement flame. Higher and higher these fervid geysers leap, madly scattering sparks and spray over the molten mass under them and the crumbling rock behind them, bathing both with living vermillion; and when at last they sink, spent for a second by the driving force of their own frenzy, it is only to vault violently up again into the super-charged atmosphere.

Fascinated, you watch them with a passionate intensity that has caught fire from the crater. Under the flaming network, you see dark undulating waves of lava swelling and moving, as if some buried monster were stirring its great limbs beneath the surface, then folding them again—for how long who can say? At any instant, a dragon may emerge, its great eyes gleaming, its great jaws gaping, its great trunk distended. You wait and watch for its coming.

In the fading light, the network begins to sparkle and spread, assuming strange shapes, fantastic forms. Here, at its base, a scarlet lizard is crawling over the glistening mud; there at its side, is a scarlet peacock spreading an arrogant tail up every waving feather is exposed. A slipper, high-heeled, provocative, slips daintily out of a lace-like fluff of vivid foam; and suddenly above this, we see the copper-haired, the striking sensuous profile of Pele herself—no light-of-love, no trivial painted lady, but a great courtesan, superb, imperial, triumphant.

CHOCOLATE PINWHEELS

6 tablespoons Crisco
½ cup sugar
1 egg yolk
4 tablespoons milk
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 square chocolate
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend Crisco with sugar and egg yolk. Add the milk, then the sifted dry ingredients and the vanilla. Divide the mixture in half and to one-half of it add the melted chocolate. Roll the white dough into a thin sheet and then roll the chocolate mixture into a sheet of the same size. Place the chocolate dough over the white and roll up like a jelly roll about 1½ to 2 inches in diameter. Chill in refrigerator several hours, then cut down in thin slices and place on a cookie sheet rubbed with Crisco. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375° F.) for about 15 minutes. Very finely ground nuts may be sprinkled over the white dough before the chocolate dough is put in place. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

SEATTLE STOPS L.A.'S VICTORIES JOE LANG MEETS AMATEUR

The Seattle Indians, battling for more insurance against a sudden drop into the cellar, checked the Los Angeles Angels' 11-game winning streak with a 7 to 5 win over the Seraphs at Wrigley Field, Los Angeles, yesterday.

Pickrel and Thomas limited the Angels to nine hits, while the Indians were landing on Meola, Kimball and Gabler for 14 safeties. The Indians' victory evened the series at one game each and temporarily halted the southerners' quest of the Oakland A's berth.

The Portland Beavers, meantime, did not fair as well in their conquest of southern soil. They dropped an 11-inning thriller to the San Francisco Seals, 10 to 9. The Seals played errorless ball while Portland was booting five plays. Both teams used three pitchers and two catchers. Portland had 16 hits to 15 for San Francisco.

In a night game on their home lot, the Oaks walloped the Missions 13 to 1. Oakland batsmen laced the offerings of Radonits, Osborne and Tost for 19 safeties, while Conlan limited the Missions to nine hits.

Sacramento walloped the Hollywood Stars even more severely in a night game at Sacramento. The Senators, behind Art Herring's 7-hit pitching, won the game 10 to 1.

Champs Meet On Fast Card

McLaughlin, Toussaint Feature Events at Hall

Two bantams—both with spurs, the fellers' who fought for the love of it. One of the bantams was Joe Lang, former national champion and American Olympic representative at Los Angeles substituting for Danny Kaverne. The other was George Ciemelli, runner-up in the recent St. Louis national championships. Both boys blocked and dodged with the skill becoming champions, but neither was aggressive. The referee was Homer Brandis, former national lightweight champion.

FOUR KNOCKDOWNS SEEN

The real contest of the evening was an exhibition bout between Emory McLaughlin and Benny Toussaint. Both went to the canvas twice from stiff punches and two more times the fighters fell after missing haymakers.

Another fast exhibition bout was between Tommy Cobb, Golden Gloves champion, and Eddie Fagundes. Cobb sent Fagundes to the canvas with a nasty short right hand punch, then hit the canvas himself from a similar blow. The pair were fast punchers and forgot about the match being an exhibition.

Other exhibition bouts were between John DeSopa and Frank Rinauro, lightweights; Silvia Boicelli and Ralph DeSopa, featherweights; and Jackie Jurich, Golden Glove champ, and Chuck O'Laughlin, featherweights.

CAVALLO BEATS HARTLEY

In a cyclonic three-fall wrestling match, Al Cavallo, announced as champion of Honolulu, kicked, hit, bit, twisted and groaned his way to a victory over Young Hartley, champion of Portland. Hartley took the first fall with assorted mayhem, including running high jumps and some nice punching. Then Cavallo neatly drop-kicked

WHO WOULDN'T PULL FOR HER?

Crew has become twice as popular at the University of Pennsylvania since the co-eds took to the water. Elsie Bortel, petite coxswain, shown here, is one of the reasons why the sport is drawing so much attention.

Hartley to the chin to even falls, and went on to win the third fall with an airplane swing. Stools, referee and water buckets entered into the fray which had all the side-show melodrama that passes for wrestling today.

Malvina Abbott and Madeleine Bailey, tap dancers; Meyer Hearst, vocalist, and Paul Showalter, master of ceremonies and vocalist, provided entertainment between matches.

A packed house attended the bouts, arranged by Tommy Cello and Joe Marquez.

Divorce Is Sought From Highway Officer

State Highway Patrolman Otto H. Schramm, of Daly City, was today sued for divorce by Beulah Schramm, who cited grounds of extreme cruelty for the action. Custody of the couple's 7-month-old child and $100 a month alimony is asked by Mrs. Schramm, who states in her action the couple married August 26, 1930 in Reno and separated April 22 of this year.

WHITE GOPHER CAUGHT ALIVE AT WOODSIDE

Albino Specimen May Be Turned Over
To Stanford

An albino gopher, with fluffy white hair and pure pink eyes, was trapped alive Tuesday on the Woodside estate of James F. Waters by John Skrabo, head gardener.

The gopher, which is about half-grown, was put in a bucket filled with dirt and was fed seeds and cabbage leaves, which it devoured before burrowing into the dirt. The rodent was captured in an ordinary gopher trap. Skrabo reported. It was still alive today.

Albino gophers are extremely rare, according to a member of the faculty of the Stanford University physiological department, who declared he had never before heard of a similar one.
